- C. CREATE INDEX ord_idx2ON ord_itemsì¼^ord_noì¼%;

D. CREATE INDEX ord_idx1 ON ord_i¼^ord_noi¼%;

Answer: A,C

Explanation:

How Are Indexes Created?

You can create two types of indexes.

Unique index: The Oracle server automatically creates this index when you define a column in a table to have a PRIMARY KEY or a UNIQUE constraint. The name of the index is the name that is given to the constraint.

Nonunique index: This is an index that a user can create. For example, you can create the FOREIGN KEY column index for a join in a query to improve the speed of retrieval.

Note: You can manually create a unique index, but it is recommended that you create a unique constraint, which implicitly creates a unique index.
