NEW QUESTION: 1
A company runs SQL Server Database Engine and SQL Server Reporting Services (SSRS) in native mode.
Reports are based on data that is cached in multiple shared datasets. Source data is purged each day at midnight for regulatory compliance purposes. The shared datasets may continue to cache data that should not be used in reports.
Shared report schedules are often paused during nightly server maintenance windows.
Reports must not return purged data.
You need to create a fully automated solution to ensure that reports do not deliver purged data.
What should you do? (More than one answer choice may achieve the goal. Select the BEST answer.)
A. Write a script that calls the flushcache method to clear individual items from the SSRS cache. Create a SQL Server Agent job that runs rs.exe with the script as an input file, and schedule the job to run every day after the purge process completes.

B. Create a shared schedule. Configure the datasets to expire on the shared schedule.
C. Republish the cached datasets by using SQL Server Data Tools.
D. Create a SQL Server Agent job that uses a Transact-SQL (T-SQL) step to delete the data from the dbo.ExecutionCache table in the ReportServerTempDB database. Schedule the job to run every day after the purge process completes.
