NEW QUESTION: 3

Which of the following is a flexible set of design principles used during the phases of systems development and integration?

A. Service-oriented architecture (SOA)

B. Service-oriented modeling framework (SOMF)

C. Service-oriented modeling and architecture (SOMA)

D. Sherwood Applied Business Security Architecture (SABSA)

Answer: A

Explanation:

A service-oriented architecture (SOA) is a flexible set of design principles used during the phases of systems development and integration. A deployed SOA-based architecture will provide a loosely integrated suite of services that can be used within multiple business domains. SOA also generally provides a way for consumers of services, such as web-based applications- to be aware of available SOA-based services.

Answer option C is incorrect. The service-oriented modeling and architecture (SOMA) includes an analysis and design method that extends traditional object-oriented and component-based analysis and design methods to include concerns relevant to and supporting SOA. Answer option A is incorrect. The service-oriented modeling framework (SOMF) has been proposed by author Michael Bell as a service-oriented modeling language for software development that employs disciplines and a holistic language to provide strategic solutions to enterprise problems. The service-oriented modeling framework (SOMF) is a service-oriented development life cycle methodology. It offers a number of modeling practices and disciplines that contribute to a successful service-oriented life cycle management and modeling. The service-oriented modeling framework illustrates the major elements that identify the "what to do" aspects of a service development scheme.

Answer option B is incorrect. SABSA (Sherwood Applied Business Security Architecture) is a framework and methodology for Enterprise Security Architecture and Service Management. It is a model and a methodology for developing risk-driven enterprise information security architectures and for delivering security infrastructure solutions that support critical business initiatives.
