Which of the following is a cause of model risk in risk management?

- A. Incorrect parameter estimation
- B. All of the above
- C. Misspecification of the model
- D. Programming errors

Answer: B

Explanation:

Explanation

Model risk is the risk that a model built for estimating a variable will produce erroneous estimates. Model risk is caused by a number of factors, including:

a) Misspecifying the model: For example, using a normal distribution when it is not justified.

b) Model misuse: For example, using a model built to estimate bond prices to estimate equity prices c) Parameter estimation errors: In particular, parameters that are subjectively determined can be subject to significant parameter estimation errors d) Programming errors: Errors in coding the model as part of computer implementation may not be detected by end users e) Data errors: Errors in data used for building the model may also introduce model risk Therefore the correct answer is d, as all the choices are a source of model risk.
