NEW QUESTION: 2
You have lost all your RMAN backup set pieces due to a disk failure. Unfortunately, you have an automated cross-check script that also does a delete expired backupset command. You have restored all the backup set pieces from tape. What command would you use to get those backup set pieces registered in the recovery catalog and the control file of the database again?
A. load backupset
B. synch metadata
C. register database
D. catalog start with E. recover catalog
Answer: D
Explanation:

Use the CATALOG command to do the following: Add backup pieces and image copies on disk to the RMAN repository Record a data file copy as a level 0 incremental backup in the RMAN repository, which enables you to use it as part of an incremental backup strategy START WITH 'string_pattern' Catalogs all valid backup sets, data file and control file copies, and archived redo log files whose name start with string_pattern. The string pattern can be an ASM disk group, Oracle-managed files directory, or part of a file name (see Example 2-32). RMAN reports any files in the disk location that it cannot catalog. RMAN must be connected to a mounted target database. If the string pattern specifies a file name, then it matches the left part of the file name pattern. For example, /tmp/arc matches everything in directory /tmp/arc_dest and /tmp/archive/january as well as file /tmp/arc.cpy. Note: You cannot use wildcard characters in the string pattern, only a strict prefix.

NEW QUESTION: 3

You are developing a Microsoft SQL Server Integration Services (SSIS) projects. The project consists of several packages that load data warehouse tables.
You need to extend the control flow design for each package to use the following control flow while minimizing development efforts and maintenance:

Solution: You add the control flow to an ASP.NET assembly. You add a script task that references this assembly to each data warehouse load package.

Does the solution meet the goal?
A. Yes
B. No
Answer: B
Explanation:
Explanation
A package consists of a control flow and, optionally, one or more data flows. You create the control flow in a package by using the Control Flow tab in SSIS Designer.
